

Institute for Social and Development Studies (IGP) at the Munich School of Philosophy

The IGP is an institute of the Society of Jesus, affiliated to the Jesuit order's Munich School of Philosophy. The thematic focal points of its work are fundamental questions and fields of application of the social sciences and social ethics, particularly international themes such as globalisation, development policy, migration, sustainable development, human rights and inter-faith dialogue. Work on these themes is interdisciplinary.

Members of the Institute teach social philosophy, social ethics, social sciences and development policy at the School of Philosophy. The IGP works with other, globally active institutions of the Jesuit order (e.g. the Jesuit Refugee Service), with Church actors and agencies (especially the German Bishops' Conference and the German Commission for Justice and Peace), with non-governmental organisations (VENRO), political parties and companies.

Institute for Social and Development Studies (IGP), Munich School of Philosophy,
Kaulbachstraße 31a, D-80539 Munich. Phone +49 (0)89 2386-2350; fax +49 (0)89 2386-2352

<http://www.hfph.mwn.de/igp>

Personalities

Johannes Müller SJ has studied philosophy, theology, sociology and economics. He has been Professor of Social Sciences and Development Policy at the Munich School of Philosophy and, since 1986, director of the IGP.

<http://www.hfph.mwn.de/lehrkoerper/igpmit/mueller>.

Johannes Wallacher is a graduate industrial engineer and holds doctorates in both economics and philosophy. He is Professor of Social Sciences and Business Ethics at the Munich School of Philosophy. He is on the staff of IGP and director of the research and study project "Global Solidarity. Steps towards a new world culture" supported by the Rottendorf Foundation at the Munich School of Philosophy.

<http://www.hfph.mwn.de/lehrkoerper/igpmit/wallacher>

Michael Reder studied philosophy, theology and economics and wrote his doctoral dissertation on global governance. He is on the staff at IGP and has been, since 2007, Assistant Professor of Social and Religious Philosophy at the Munich School of Philosophy.

<http://www.hfph.mwn.de/lehrkoerper/igpmit/reder>