

Sociospatial Transformations And The Urban Fringe Landscape In Developing Countries -- A Case Study Of Ibadan-Nigeria

By

Adesina Sunday Adedayo, Department Of Geography. University Of Ibadan. Nigeria.

- Emerging structure of the urban fringe
- Conceptualising the urban fringe vulnerability issues
- Sociospatial transformation in the urban fringe areas
- Informal sector and urban fringe landscape
- Social administration and urban fringe governance
- The environmental quality of the urban fringe

"The fringe zone or from the German stratrondzone is defined as the built up area outside the corporate limit of the city. It owes their origin to the physical limitations upon urban growth, which embarrasses the process and structural properties of the urban area with the product of very process of city growth. It is often regarded as a problem environment because it attracts all sometimes-incompatible land uses which though necessary for and indeed generated by the urban center".