Overview

The ILO's Impact Insurance Forum provides an interactive and open environment for discussing lessons learned and exchanging experiences on forefront issues confronting practitioners working in inclusive insurance. Since its debut run in 2008, the Forum has attracted and inspired hundreds of insurance practitioners and consistently received excellent satisfaction rating from them for relevant content, credible speakers and engaging method.

Theme

This year's forum will focus on the topic "Insurance for resilient value chains". Firstly, we will examine the risks faced by actors across value chains, caused by climate and other shocks. We will discuss how insurers can respond to those risks; and how they can achieve greater impact by linking insurance products with financing, climate adaptation and productivity interventions. Secondly, we will explore how insurers can leverage existing infrastructure within a value chain to distribute insurance products.

The forum will be illustrated by the experiences of our partners and will offer practical tools to analyse and engage with value chains. In addition, value chain experts will work with participants throughout the morning to enable in-depth analysis.

Target audience

As in previous years, the Forum is targeted towards insurance practitioners, including insurance providers, risk carriers, and distribution partners. The discussions will also benefit government agencies interested in supporting resilient value chains.

Forum language

Presentations will be in English or Spanish. Interpretation will be available in both languages.
