

Martina Mayerhofer

Political scientist, Project manager

Background

Martina Mayerhofer studied political science with a major in economics. Her areas of research included sustainable development and sustainable economics. Before her university studies, she was trained as a bank officer and worked for various employers including Deutsche Bank, Munich.

Responsibilities at Munich Re Foundation

Martina Mayerhofer has been working as a project manager for the Munich Re Foundation since October 2007. She manages projects relating to water as a resource, climate education and sustainability, and student projects.

The projects include:

- Dialogue Forums
- Fog nets
- Munich Energy School
- Virtual Academy

Other tasks:

- Managing editor of print publications
- Supervising interns

About the Foundation:

The Foundation's work addresses major global challenges: the fight against poverty, environmental and climate change, water as a resource and risk factor, demographic development and disaster prevention – and supports people in risk situations